

ST THIS WEEK'S MUST-HAVE

Making guests feel right at home

GONE are the days of sleeping on the floor of your mate's house following one too many drinks at Christmas.

No one wants to wake up in the morning with crippling back pain and eyes that require matchsticks to keep him or her open.

This is where the Aerobed comes in handy – an extremely fast self-inflating, luxury airbed that uses the latest comfort technology to guarantee a great night's sleep.

Where space is an issue, the Aerobed provides the ideal temporary solution. It rolls up quickly and stores compactly in a durable carry bag for easy transport and storage. It also fits standard size sheets and makes up like a real bed.

Even if you have piled on a few pounds after eating more than your fair share of mince pies it is no problem as the Aerobed can withstand more than 300kgs of weight.

Every measure has been taken to make sure the bed is as comfortable as possible. Firstly it includes comfort zones, small coils that create individual pockets of air, which are then distributed evenly.

They make the bed feel solid and prevent the air moving from one side to the other.

The One Touch comfort control feature enables the guest to adjust the firmness of the Aerobed and the mattress cover also adds an extra layer of comfort.

Aside from putting the sheets on, no effort is required when

The Aerobed inflates in a matter of minutes to the height of a standard bed, putting up the bed as it comes complete with an electric pump that rapidly inflates it in less than 60 seconds. There are six types of Aerobeds: The standard Classic bed is priced at £59.99 but for £20 you can spoil your guest with a Premier Aerobed, which features a cosy fleece mattress cover and a powerful recessed pump for inflation. Alternatively you could pamper your guests with a luxurious sleeping experience on the Platinum mattress. This bed features orthopaedic approved anti-roll technology and is priced at £139.99. A new addition is the Active Aerobed. As the perfect solution for camping and the outdoors it features a rechargeable, detachable pump and is made from a heavy duty, puncture resistant vinyl material for durability. A child's bed is also available for £49.99. Aerobeds can be bought from John Lewis, Argos, Harrods, Selfridges & Co, MFI, Tesco, Dreams and Furniture Village. More details at www.aerobed.co.uk
